

A scientific article based on a comparative analysis of river basin management planning processes carried out in the Waterpraxis project has been published. It shows the strengths and weaknesses of different institutional arrangements for integrated water management in the Baltic Sea Region countries.

The article is available at <http://dx.doi.org/10.1016/j.landusepol.2012.04.011> .

Due to copyrights the link above is not fully downloadable for all users. Please use the original manuscript available below (pre-print version).

{jd_file file==609}